Wine Line: Rosés Recommended

A common mistake people make with rosés is they drink them too cold. My refrigerator is set at 37 degrees. Serve rosé in the 45-50 degree range, like white wines. Let the wine sit for 20 minutes before serving and it will open up to let you smell those aromas of fresh strawberries and rose petals. Two American rosés worth finding are the 2015 Mercer Rosé (Grenache) from Washington and the 2015 California Lazy Creek Vineyards Anderson Valley (pinot noir) Two French rosés are the 2015 La Vigne du Roy Costieres de Nimes and the 2015 E. Guigal Cotes du Rhone. Cheers!
